

FAQs

Here you would find answers to frequently asked questions.....

What if a student gives me false facts?

We have taken great care to ensure that no student commits such a mistake. However, if a student is found to have submitted incorrect personal facts, we take such issues very seriously a warning would be issued and they are supposed to state the cause of negligence.

Following this, we would put the student on probation and all their facts would be checked by their mentors and us personally depending on the severity of the facts forged.

What if a company gives me a bad review despite good work?

To this we suggest that you take down facts and proceedings of your entire work with the company. Document everything officially from the day of your joining to the day of your leave taking. Also, take down their behaviour towards you. If it is a truly unsafe environment then you could save many other students. If injustice has truly taken place in terms of review you can use these documents and not have to bother with their review. Otherwise we will brand your complains as telling tales.

What if a student gives me poor or plagiarized work?

We, at Amrapali Group of Institute have a very strict policy against plagiarism committed in any field of our work. Any authentic complain linking a student of ours to plagiarism of another person's recognized work will lead to severe repercussions as, suspension, expulsion or similar from the college. Please note, we take such complains very seriously, and very serious action is taken in both cases if plagiarism is truly detected and if you were to make such an accusation frivolously.

What if student is incapable of working in the project?

All companies are allowed to test the students they wish to hire as rigorously as possible. However, if you still encounter a problem with the student we suggest that you make your stipend payment based not on the time put in but the output produced. Then, depending on what the student has done till date for your company you may pay him and dismiss him. The student, is allowed to offer his mentorship to the new applicants for your company, so, we encourage you to exercise good care in selection procedure, and avoid such a situation.

What if the work assigned to me is not good enough?

We request all students to go through the project outline and work to be expected from it. They can even seek their mentors help and approach employees of the company using social media forums. However, if you still encounter a problem, unfortunately until and unless the company has gone totally against its project outline we can't do much. Negligence on your part is also a bad idea because you would have spoilt a position a person more suitable for the job could have taken.

What if a company poses a hostile environment?

It is your legal right to be granted a safe work environment and it is your duty to ask for it and maintain it. Harassment complaints made by either party are taken very seriously. It is not only the institute policy but the country's as well to take strict action. Any student or company official caught indulging in misbehavior will face consequences. Please realize the sanctity of such complains and refrain from throwing around such accusations.
